Billy and Asket Meet Jitschi

The year is 1953, Billy and Asket are travelling in the Middle East through the Jordanian desert. They are asleep in the beam ship under a blanket of stars when a man is approaching while firing his shotgun into the air. The man is amazed and very surprised to see a beamship in the desert and decides to investigate with caution and then meets Billy and Asket.

His name is Jitschi but his real name is Illyitch Ustinov and he is a friendly chap and says that they could call him just Jitschi. Billy explains that he is from Earth but Asket is an extraterrestrial from another planet.

After a short conversation about Christianity and other matters, Asket invites him to travel with her and Billy to the past in order to experience things that would help educate him about many things. At first Jitschi is hesitant but he soon decides to go with them for he knows that this would probably be the one and only most fantastic time of his life.

All aboard the beamship!

Billy, Asket and Jitschi are about to enter the beamship. They are standing in the doorway of the beamship when a transport beam emanating from above the door slowly lifts them up into the beamship. Jitschi screams in fright because he has never felt like this before but Asket is quick to reassure him by explaining the mechanics and the workings of the transport beam.

A few minutes go by before Jitschi is himself again and calm. Asket then begins to explain that they are going to travel back in time to France to the 13th century and again, Jitschi feels frightened and confused and is thinking that he may be dreaming because, surely such a trip is impossible. But Asket reassures him again that all is well and that he is safe. But before they can embark on such a journey, he must make a promise.

Asket is asking him to never reveal this experience to anybody and never to mention that he met Billy and an extraterrestrial woman, and reluctantly Jitschi agrees.

The reason that Jitschi must keep this experience a secret is because it could endanger the continued existence of our whole world and even the other planets in our star system.

Travelling through time

Asket being the pilot of her beamship takes the controls and in no time they are out of Earth's atmosphere. Flying higher and higher into the vastness of space, they find themselves whizzing between sparkling stars and planets. Jitschi becomes pale as chalk, coughing and feeling sick, so Asket speaks to him with calming words. She explains that they are about to time travel, to make a leap in time back to the past, which will cause them to be invisible, but this will only be for a split of a second, and he won't even feel a thing.

Then as quick as a flash, the beamship is back in Earth's atmosphere gently gliding down, and then landing in a clearing of a great forest. Asket now explains that they have reached their destination and are now in the 13th century in France.

In the 13th century, France

Asket, Billy and Jitschi leave the beamship. They are in a foreign country where the language is just as foreign to them as is the time period. Jitschi falls to the ground and is glad to be sitting on the green grass. Asket was prepared and brought with her a special translator belt for each of them. This special translator belt enables a person to talk and to listen to any other person in any foreign spoken language. Any person will be able to understand them so no suspicions will arise.

Billy notices how very different the environment is. Thousands of birds are creating a very loud twittering noise, something he doesn't experience back on Earth. Also the air feels much fresher. The blue of the sky is a fantastic azure blue, a colour he hasn't seen before. As far as the eye can see, there are no houses in any direction and no people to be seen. It may feel a little lonesome but it's beautiful and so peaceful.

Meeting rabbi Jechieli

Asket leads Billy and Jitschi on a path through a forest and after 15 minutes they reach a log hut at the edge of the forest. She explains that a bearded man named Jechieli is called a scientist, wizard and a magician by the local people but only the scientist part is true.

A horse stands behind the hut which indicates that it is must be the only means of transport at this day and age. Inside the hut a dog began barking alerting Jechieli who quickly comes to the front door to greet Asket. They appear to know one another. She introduces Billy and Jitschi and explains that they come from the future.

Jechieli, being a scientist, is naturally interested in the flashlight that is hanging off Billy's belt. Jitschi begins to explain how it is assembled and how it is powered by electricity that comes from the batteries inside the flashlight.

Jechieli is fascinated by this gadget and so Billy decides to give it to him as a gift which makes Jechieli very grateful and happy.

They continue talking and exchanging ideas while Asket and Billy go off in another direction towards the meadows chatting and enjoying a most glorious Mother Nature.

Time to Leave

After spending 5 fantastic hours exploring the local sights and enjoying each other's company, it is time to leave this time period and place.

It appears that Jechieli is a very fast learner and now has a good understanding of how electricity works. And so, Jitschi decides to give Jechieli his electric fence energizer. It can send an electric current through any metal and will also give a small electric shock to any man or animal that touches the metal. Jechieli with his mischievous nature thinks about having some fun. He says that is going to use it to energize his metal door knocker so that anyone who touches it, gets a minor electric shock, because people constantly bother him. And since no one else in the 13th century knows about electricity anyway, if someone gets a mild electric shock, than they are bound to think that Jechieli is some kind of wizard or a sorcerer and would quickly run away. Asket thinks that it is quite a good and funny idea. So they all say farewell to Jechieli and walk back through the forest to Asket's beamship. Once again they are beamed up and get ready for another leap through space and time.
